Tarnow Scientific Program Sets New Standards for Excellence at 4th Annual Columbia University/ICOI Implant Symposium

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY
College of Dental Medicine

The annual implant symposium, co-sponsored by the Columbia University College of Dental Medicine and ICOI, was held December 13-14, 2013 at Lerner Hall on the main campus at Columbia University. Dr. Dennis P. Tarnow, Director of Implant Education at Columbia has been Scientific Chairman for this meeting since its inception in 2010 and has always designed a captivating program. However, according to ICOI Co-Chair, Dr. Kenneth Judy, the faculty and topics for the 2013 symposium were outstanding by any measure. The program and its truly international list of excellent speakers started on Friday morning, December 13, 2013 with Dr. Marco Degidi from Italy who spoke on “Immediate Loading and Final Esthetic Outcome: A Powerful Synergy”. Dr. Tidu Mankoo from the U.K. gave an absorbing lecture on “Restoration of ‘Failing’ Teeth with Implants in the Esthetic Zone”. Dr. Joseph Carpentieri from the Columbia faculty provided an “Interdisciplinary Approach to CAD/CAM and Digital Dentistry”, followed by Dr. Markus Hurzeler from Munich, Germany whose interesting topic was “The Socket-Shield Technique – Is it just a gimmick?”

Following our lunch break with the exhibitors, Dr. Christos Angelopoulos from Greece, gave a forceful interpretation to 3D imaging with his lecture, “The Hilly Terrain of 3D Imaging: What are we looking for? What are we missing? What should we be watching out for?” Dr. Richard Smith from New York City, presented a challenging lecture on “Immediate Moral Implant: a New Socket Classification System and Game-changing Treatment Protocol”. Dr. Ziv Mazor from Israel concluded day one of this symposium with his discussion on “A Minimally Invasive Approach to Sinus Augmentation”.

Day two started off with a bang. Dr. Istvan Urban from Budapest, Hungary, fascinated the audience with his “New Perspectives on Ridge Augmentation”, followed by Dr. Joao Carames from Lisbon, Portugal who conveyed in his lecture the advantages of “Full Arch Implant Rehabilitation: Surgical and Prosthetic Strategies for Predictable Results”. Dr. Francesco Amato from Catania, Italy dealt with “Hard and Soft Tissue Management for Long Term Esthetic Results in the Anterior Zone”. Following the mid-morning break, Dr. Eduardo Anitua,
